The Eyes Have It!

Our eyes say a lot about us. Shakespeare even referred to them as "the window to your soul." And yet, as we age excess eyelid skin on our upper or lower lids can cause sagging, droopy eyelids, which can make us appear sad, tired or angry and even cause difficulty with peripheral vision. Eyelid surgery, or blepharoplasty, removes the excess skin, eliminates bags and restores firmness to the area surrounding the eye for a more youthful and alert appearance. Upper eyelid surgery may be covered by insurance if vision is impaired by the sagging eyelids.

Eyelid surgery can address these concerns:

- Sagging, droopy eyelids
- Eyes appearing half closed
- Difficulty with peripheral vision
- Difficulty applying makeup and keeping it on
- Wrinkles under the eyes

Happy patients! Eyelid surgery can be a very effective way to look younger and more alert. With little downtime needed and minimal scarring - camouflaged by the eyelid crease (upper) and lower eyelashes (lower) - it's no wonder blepharoplasty is one of our most popular procedures for both men and women.

Once again, breast augmentation was “queen,” ranking #1 for most popular plastic surgery, followed by breast reduction surgery as a close 2nd and abdominoplasty (or tummy tuck) closing in at 3rd. Most breast reductions and many of the abdominoplasties were covered by insurance.

2017 continued an increasing trend toward dermal fillers for facial rejuvenation, especially ‘designer fillers’ used for specific areas of the face, notably lips (Volbella) and mid-face (Voluma), both of which are longer-lasting than other fillers. This year we continued to see the age range of people wanting fillers expand with more and more Millennials starting to get Botox and dermal filler in their 20s and 30s, viewing it as a way to stave off wrinkles and reshape lips.

CoolSculpting received a lot of attention in 2017 and was ranked “#1 Fat Fighter” for the 4th year in a row by New Beauty Magazine. With 3 machines in our Brunswick, St. Marys and Waycross offices, Renue Plastic Surgery is the largest CoolSculpting provider in southeast Georgia.
